

Jan MICHL (*1946) is a professor emeritus of design history and design theories at the Institute of form, theory and history at The Oslo School of Architecture (AHO), Norway, and an adjunct professor at the Department of computer science and media technology at the Gjøvik branch of the Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU) (HiG), Norway. For the past fifteen years or so, and until 2014 he also conducted week-long autumn design theory workshops at the Academy of Arts, Architecture and Design (VŠUP) in Prague, The Czech Republic.

He was born in former Czechoslovakia, and educated at the Purkyně, now Masaryk University of Brno, nowadays The Czech Republic (PhDr., 1975), and at the University of Uppsala in Sweden (fil.kand, 1971), with art history, languages, and economic history as his principal subjects. He has lived in Norway since 1981.

His research interests lie in the field of design theory, more specifically within the theory of modernist design, its critiques and alternatives.

Some 60 of his articles, mainly in English, Norwegian and Czech, are accessible online at his website janmichl.com.